This yere the .xrviii. day of October at .v. of the clocke .xrvb. minutes after none shal appere an Eclipse of ỹ Mone and shalbe darckened .rviii. pointes. Although that the Eclipse of the Sun, or Mone be thinges naturall and ỹ Philosophicallye reasons may be geuẽ while it so chaũceth: yet not withstandig I wishe the louing reader to take aduertisment by this and other mosse straunge impressions seene of late in the ayre to flee from sin, wherwith the world almost ... where swarmeth. For vndoubtidly these terrible tempestes, and seldome seene sights do preache vnto vs

vs gods wrathfull indignation to be euen at our doores (if we spede ly repent not) vtterly to destroye vs. What wunderfull sightz were sene at Jerusalem before the destruction of it: Josephus doth testify, & yet cannot the people take no regarde therunto but still per-seuerid in theyr moste filthye and vngodly liues: God at last perfor-mid that he had threteni & so destroyed them executyng on them the rod of his Justice and terible indignation, which toke no regar de to his swet and fatherly admonitions. Deferre not therfore the [illegible] returne, put not of repentaunce frō daye to day, least that whiles ye so dissemble with your double hartz, god vtterly turne ne

re away his face & when ye wold there be no place left vnto you to repent, as of late dayes within the countie of Suffex we haue had a-moste terrible exãple in one that dyed moste lamentablye despayringe in the mercies of God. Of whome I purpose god willyng to set out ỹ whole story, or rather moste fearfull tragedye to this entẽt that we beholdig ỹ seuere Iustice of almightie god in ỹ partie: may learne to shake of our vyle carnal securytie and after the counsel of Christe to watche with prayer.

¶ Of Wynter, the first part of the yere.

Hyems, omnium consensu, frigida et humida dicitur, non tamen ea de causa, quod reliquis temporibus frigidior humidiorq; sit, sed quod frigiditas in ea superat caliditatem, et humiditas siccitatem.

Winter begynneth ỳ. xii. day of Decembre when the sũ entreth in to ỳ first degree of Capricorne whiche day is the shortest day in the yere for then is the sunne fardest of from vs. Thẽ beginneth the day to encrece agaīne and the night to decrece. This parte of ỳ yere by nature is colde and moyste and therfore the diseases that happẽ in this parte of the yere ar colde and moyst diseases. as Coughes, Reumes, Horsnesse Goute Fluxes. ꝛc. This time of the yere

yere shall the Cholericke parsõs be in best lyking. In this quarter of the yere as testifieth. Hippocrates. 1. Aphor. 15. We ought to eate muche and to drinke little and to eate those meats as ar hote and dry of compleriõ. as ar Cunnies, Pigions, and all smal byrds. &c. This time meats rosted are more holsome then sod.

¶ Of Ver or Spring tyme.

Ver salubertimum est, minimeq; morbis qui mortem afferant, obnoxium.

VEr begynneth the. xii. of Marche when the Sunne entreth into the firste minute of Aries, then is the day and nyght night equal. This quarter of the yere after the minde of some is hote & moyst, but after the mynde of Hippocrates & Galene it is temperate and therfore is the most holsomest parte of the yere. In this parte of the yere I councel those to be let blod who doubt them selues to be vexed with any sickenesse the rest of the yere after, for by ỳ meanes shall helth be preserued. The diseases ỳ happen this quarter of the yere do moste commōly proceed of blod and superfluity of moysture, as Pleurcsies, Madnes. Blodye flyres, Scabbes, Vlcers and suche lyke. The sanguin this time of the yere shall prosper and so shal the Melancholick also. This time of ỳ yere must we eate lesse thē we did in winter & drink somthing more and also vse more sodd meatz then rosted and also suche meatz as are nurishing.

¶ Of Sommer.

¶ Estas calida et sicca existit.

Sommer begineth the .xiii. day of Iune at what tyme the Sunne entreth in to Cancer. that daye is the longest day in all the yere. The Sommer by nature is hot & drye, his diseases procede of Choler & blod, as hot burnyng Agues, Quotidiās Tertians. This parte of the yer shall the Flegmaticke complexion, be in best lyking. In this quarter

ter we ought to eate lytle and to drinke muche and those meatꝫ we eat: ought to be sodde meatꝫ and of colde complexion.

¶Of Autumne.

¶Autumnus inequalis est.

AUtumne beginneth the viii. of September whē the sunne entreth into Libra then is the day and night equall. This parte of the yere is the most wholsomest parte, and is distemperid in complexion, and therfore is callid the nurice of all dissease. This time we ought to vse good & holsome diete and to eat more then we did in sommer and also to drinke lesse.

Of

Of Sickenesse that shal happen this yere.

IN the Spryng time of this yere and Winter also shal be many daungerouse and greuouse sicknesses as Pleuresies paine in the Lungs, Feuers, Mertymes, Falling sickenesse Rumes, Apoplerie, Madnes, Jaundyes, Lepzosie, Ulcers, Byles, Ache in the Joints & suche like. The Sommer time and Autumne shal brig hot feuers, as Cholice et Exantice, w consuptions Tholick, Stragury with other great obstructiõs & putrefactions. Let vs therfore make our prayers vnto ỹ eternall god to geue vs grace to amende our liues and to flẽ from sinne, that that we bæing turnid from our wickednesses, he may also turne him frome the plages wherwith he hath deuised to punishe vs. Pray therfore continualye. Amen.

¶ For blood letting.

¶ I found in a litle book intitulid Amicus medicorum, concerning blood letting as followeth. The first day of the Moon, is meetly good. The second & third euel, the iiii. v. vj. vij. and ninth euel. the x. but meetly good. the xi. is meetly good for yung men hauing need. The xij. good the xiij. meetly good. xiiij. & xv. euel. xvi. & xvij. meetly good. xviij good for yung men & that be choleryche. xix. for olde men xx. and. xxi. euel. xxii. good. xxiij. very good, & xxiij. xxiiij xxv and. xxvi. good. xxvij euel. xxviii. and if ye xxix. euel. the. xxx. wurs.
